Dear President Patton,

We value the statement made in your May 31, 2020 email that "Education and action are the two forms of oxygen that can heal." Your commitment to anti-racism and challenging white supremacy is crucial to fostering a culture of safety and acceptance on campus. We hope that this sentiment is maintained as you read through this letter. We appreciate your time in advance.

One of the most powerful and necessary actions that this administration can take in pursuit of anti-racism is to restructure the role of Public Safety on our campus by dissolving Middlebury's collaboration with police and private security. We are not the only institution making these requests. Movements against police have proliferated on college campuses across the country. Recently, the University of Minnesota has changed its relationship with the Minneapolis police, pledging not to call them for law enforcement support or special events. UVM students demand UVM cut ties with Burlington police. And more will follow.

Over the past few years, we have repeatedly articulated to both the Office of the President and the rest of the administration that the presence of police, private security, and punitive public safety systems do not make our community safer. On the contrary, these entities place the most marginalized among us at unnecessary risk. The institution of policing has a long history of horrific abuses, particularly against marginalized populations. Our reliance on private security and public security systems based in this policing regime fails to protect our community's health and safety. Instead, it perpetuates an unwelcoming culture of white supremacy by exposing students, faculty, and staff to potential violence at the hands of current and former police. Furthermore, it deepens Middlebury's complacency in upholding damaging, racist structures.

At Middlebury College, police and public safety have racially profiled and harassed black students, faculty, and staff as well as other community members of color. These incidents include when Addis Fouche-Channer, a black alumna of the class of 2017, was racially profiled and accused of having attended a protest against Charles Murray in March 2017. Although GPS data revealed that Fouche-Channer was nowhere near the protest as she had testified, Middlebury still believed the Public Safety officer who falsely identified her and forced Fouche-Channer into a lengthy and unwarranted judicial process. Later in 2017, a professor of color was aggressively harassed and questioned by Public Safety while unlocking the campus building door where her office was located. Students, faculty, and staff of color have experienced countless similar incidents that specifically place them at risk and highlight the gap between Public Safety and actual safety. This untenable system of public safety is thus incompatible with Middlebury's stated goals of committing to racial justice and anti-racism.

Despite the concerns expressed by students, faculty, staff and community members, the College has repeatedly collaborated with police. We hope that during this time of national civil unrest, you can understand the pain and terror the student body experienced this past semester when we heard that police were coming to campus for a controversial and racist speaker event. We repeatedly asked that this institution reconsider its decision to bring armed law enforcement into our home, and we were refused. In response, students were forced to organize a system of cop-watchers, de-escalators, and legal observers to keep our community safe. We hope you can recognize the irony in this. We remembered the profiling of Black students that happens frequently on our campus, and knew that similar instances of racial profiling happen in many of our home communities. We know that police do not protect us, and we did what was necessary to keep each other safe. We need you to do the same by eliminating police presence at Middlebury.

You acknowledged in the same email referenced earlier that "People of color in our country walk daily with deep vulnerability to the threats of institutionalized violence. They face greater risk of death in the time of coronavirus, greater risk of death on the streets and in their homes." The same risks of institutionalized violence are also present at Middlebury. The question is: what will you do to mitigate these risks?

There is a simple, powerful, and effective position you can take to prevent police brutality. You can cut off all future collaborations with law enforcement and private security around campus events, and commit to refrain from calling the police. You can dismantle Public Safety's punitive role, abolish citations, and reconstruct a public safety team that is accountable to the community, with expertise in medical first aid, mental and sexual health, drug and alcohol harm reduction, de-escalation and conflict resolution. You can collaborate with the Town of Middlebury to defund the local police department and envision transformative community solutions, and you can support student-led workshops on cop-watching, legal observing, and de-escalation tactics. These actions will not be enough to repair the years of trauma that have occurred at Middlebury nor the centuries of oppression and violence faced by Black people and other people of color throughout this country. But they are a necessary step towards justice.

We know we have a long way to go, but we imagine a future wherein Middlebury is a safer, more equitable place for all of us. We imagine a Middlebury where policing is obsolete, where trained community members take care of each other following principles of restorative justice, harm-reduction, consent, de-escalation, and community repair; where we promote each other's health and well-being instead of investing in racist, punitive systems of control; where our commitment to anti-racism and Black liberation extends beyond performative words and does the work of dismantling the structures of white supremacy on our campus and beyond.

You've encouraged us to "use [our] Middlebury education to challenge bigotry and hatred." We utilize our education to understand the history of the United States through a decolonial and anti-racist analysis. We acknowledge that the police force we have today began as the Slave Patrol in the South in 1704, and that we must remove an institution founded in such undeniable oppression and racism from our campus.

President Patton, we call our congressmen and senators. We are involved in local groups. We collaborate with members of our community to act against racism and take accountability for the work that needs to be done, "in our classrooms, in our living rooms, in our workplaces, in our communities." We are now asking the same of you.

We ask you to transform rhetoric into action. We ask you to move beyond metaphors and do what we should have done years ago. We ask you to meet all demands of Concerned Students of Midd and the AAUP anti-racism working group, and to listen to the leadership of our BIPOC community members. We ask you to dismantle policing on campus and to help us build a community so strong that force and coercion are irrelevant. When you ask us, "to circulate that air so all of us can breathe it in, and live," we challenge you to mean it.

Our Platform:

We expect that President Patton and the Senior Leadership Group provide an initial response to each demand by Friday July 10, 2020 on which day we will present signatures, endorsements, and testimonies to support this letter. We then invite the Senior Leadership Group and other administration to join a Zoom call with us between July 10th and July 15, 2020 to further the needed conversations between administration and students to address our demands. This conversation should be separate from, but parallel to, a very necessary and larger community town hall to discuss anti-racism on campus. Each point on this platform is vital, and we want to stress that the safety and needs of our Black community members are not up for debate.

Immediately:

1. End all collaboration with local and state police around security for campus events, and ensure that all private security officers hired for campus events are completely unarmed and wearing personal identifiers that can be used for misconduct complaints. Demand that the private security agency conduct anti-bias training for its employees in order for Middlebury to continue to use their services or host them at the College before the events they guard.
2. Use discretionary presidential, deans', and activities budgets to fund student-organized workshops on anti-racism, cop-watching, legal observation, knowing one's rights, de-escalation, ICE intervention, police and prison abolition, sexual violence prevention, substance-use harm reduction, and medic skills.

3. Commit to making PubSafe officers' actions transparent by providing public access to all budget information and data on PubSafe interactions and responses, including complaints against individual officers and aggregated racial/gender data for students facing disciplinary procedures.
4. Proactively implement and support changes from our peer groups advocating for Racial Justice at Middlebury, including Concerned Students of Middlebury and the AAUP Anti Racist Working Group.

During the Next Two Semesters:

1. End all collaboration with private security around campus events, and rely instead on teams of compensated crowd managers trained in anti-oppressive de-escalation and harm reduction.
2. Include student voices --especially Black student voices-- in a comprehensive review and edit process Public Safety policies, including “Use of Force” policies and the purpose/role of Public Safety and private security on campus.
3. Replace the current dual restorative-punitive campus justice model with an entirely restorative approach, prioritizing the feedback of BIPOC community members and those of other marginalized backgrounds. Include and prioritize a community-oriented system for holding public safety officers accountable for misconduct complaints.
4. Build a culture of trust, rather than surveillance, around COVID enforcement practices. Choose non-security officers to do contact tracing and testing work, and make enforcement around COVID protocols a non-disciplinary process.
5. Cease the College contract with Minuteman Security Technologies, a corporation that contributes to the prison industrial complex by supplying correctional facilities with surveillance technology and profiting from its services. Instead choose to identify the reasons the College feels surveillance technology is necessary and work to dismantle the root of those issues.
6. Decrease Middlebury Public Safety budget and redirect those funds towards the previously mentioned student workshops, alternative emergency response systems, and student organizations that support BIPOC community members.

Over the Next Two Years:

1. Collaborate with the Town of Middlebury to fully invest in, build, and expand on off-campus, community-based, police-free emergency crisis services, including mental and sexual health responders, drug and alcohol harm reduction, de-escalation, and crisis response/conflict resolution.

2. Completely dismantle Public Safety as we know it and rebuild a community response team of diverse, compensated students, faculty, staff, and community members accountable to the Community Council and focused on providing medical first-aid, mental and sexual health information, drug and alcohol harm reduction, de-escalation, and conflict resolution. Commit to no longer hiring former police, private security, or law enforcement officers to campus positions.
3. Retrain current Public Safety officers to non-punitive staff positions that use their skills (especially surrounding access to buildings) but do not require interaction with students around conflict resolution or harm reduction. Re-training must include workshops in anti-racism, unconscious bias, police abolition, and restorative justice.
4. Commit to relying on crisis response teams on- and off-campus for law enforcement support instead of contacting the Middlebury or Vermont State Police.
5. Work collaboratively with the student body to rebuild a community with a foundation of mutual respect in order to ensure the success of aforementioned plans.
